Grade 6 T2 Final Review

An input device is a device that allows the user to enter data or commands into a computer.

RAM stands for Random Access Memory.

It is a type of computer memory that can be accessed randomly.

System software is the type of software that controls the overall operation of a computer system.

Byte is the smallest unit of data in a computer.

A storage device is a device that is used to store data.

The operating system developed by Apple Inc. is macOS.

Tablets are best suited for reading e-books.

Presentation software enables users to create digital presentations.

The function of a CPU is to process data.

Google Chrome is an example of an internet browser.

HTML stands for Hypertext Markup Language.

A printer is an example of an output device.

The purpose of a firewall in a computer system is to prevent unauthorized access.

URL stands for Uniform Resource Locator.

Antivirus software is used to protect a computer against viruses.

LAN (Local Area Network) is an example of a computer network.

The purpose of spreadsheet software is to perform calculations and data analysis.

CPU stands for Central Processing Unit.

File explorer is an example of a graphical user interface (GUI).

PDF stands for Portable Document Format.